By Hersy H. Tavor.

This is an opportune work for the present crisis in public opinion on the subject of Temperance. It will contribute to the popular enthusasm for renovation despen the prevailing abburrance for skeeboike stimulars, and aid in harmonian and catastensitis those social sentiments which are about to crystalize in a prohibitory law.

The following from the Philideliphia Daily News, is by one of the absent critics of the country:

"The beauties of this novel will impress themselves to readily upon the attention of its readers, that we can impert little aid by critical observations. The native dignity and greatness of Rottler Jonathan, modest in the display of his intellectual power, but fervent and spontaneous in his efforts to do good; the impositiveness of Vernen, conscious of genius, intuitive, ambitious, poetical in concertion and cisesteal in linearestim, the

THE NEW-YORK MUSICAL REVIEW enters upon its sixth year in January, 1835. It is a hand-some journal, published every other Thursday, each number containing sixteen quarto pages, including four pages of new minde.

The REVIEW is comprehensive in its character, aiming the take notice of every passing musical event which is worth recording; to convey information, instruction, and amasement, and to furnish an ever fresh supply of new Music.

The heat evidence of its value is, perhaps, the fact that it has attained a circulation of wice as large as that of any other musical attained a circulation of wice as large as that of any other musical and to furnish an ever firsh supply on the fact that it has attained a circulation twice as large as that of any other musical periodical in the world.

Some of the features of THE REVIEW areas follows:
I. MUSIC.—Fach number contains four pages (usually six or eight pieces) of fresh new Music. We give Giece, Part-Songs, Rounes, Cunterto, Trico, Dueta, and Songs, as well as Anthema and other sacred pieces, with an occasion all piece for the Plano, Middedon, etc. The misse alone published in THE REVIEW in a year would coat from five to ten dollars, if purchased in sheet form.—Musical news from everywhere. Its readons are posted up as to everything musical about which any one went wish to know.

III. MUSICAL INSTRUCTION.—A leading feature of this Jeansal is to impart musical instruction. In the first number of the new sear will be commenced the advance publication of a new work, by Mr. Lowell Mason, never before published and which will not far some time be completed, so that it can be issued in book form, and which is designed as a complete guide beek or mennal for music teachers. This feature alone of THE REVIEW will be werth many times the coat.

IV ESAYS.—Fall and careful discussions of and casays upon questions of musical interest are processed. VIEW.
VII. REVIEWS OF MUSIC, BOOKS, ETC.—One of the features of THE REVIEW most valued by its subscribers in its critical notices of the new musical publications of the day. These are carefully and conscientiously prepared, and therefore
